See source Comments Share get off me! stop that! This article is protected due to constant vandalism. Hey, world. I'm Becca Sparkles. I'm fierce and fresh and I want to shake things up. It's a glittering time! New old roommate TV: Who's Becca? Apps: My Talking Tom Friends BeccaGlitter GirlBratty SingerBoyfriend Stealer Becca Sparkles is the main character in Talking Tom and Friends which was launched in Season 4. The look of Becca is a bunny that has purple and black hair with long ears, green eyes, a yellow shirt with side lightning on it, blue torn jeans and a small white spherical tail between the top of the legs. The personality of Becca is seen to portray a snarky character. If she gets sad and feels betrayed she will get angry and do anything in her way to bring back the person who upset her. As seen with Angela, she would probably do it with a diss track. She's also in love with Hank, and she gets mad when Hank doesn't get it. When she's around Hank, she gets nervous. Trivia Becca's name was revealed in Kidscreen magazine. Becca is the third non-human character to be created for the show, the first is Hank and the second is Jeremy, and he's the only character who's a rabbit. Becca's first appearance on the app was in My Talking Tom Friends. Becca's first cameo appearance was in Smash the Trash. Becca was originally named Bella, but her name was changed after who is Becca was taken? and Boyfriend Stealer, so the episodes had to be re-recorded. Season 4 shows Who is Becca? The franchise also sells branded merchandise and music videos. [218] Talking Tom and Talking Angela's music video for their single You Get Me, created in collaboration with Walt Disney Records, has received more than 350 million views on YouTube since March 2020. [5] Talking Angela also recorded her first solo song called That's Falling in Love. [219] Talking Tom and Talking Angelin Stand By Me have received 26 million views since April 2020. [220] Talking Tom and Friends launched a series of interactive toys called Superstar in 2012. Stuffed toys talk and interact with multiple Talking Tom and Friends apps, as well as each other, using a voice recognition system. [221] The series has since been discontinued. The film adaptation of Day 30 April 2018 announced that Outfit7 is working on a feature film, with Jean-Julien Baronnert production, it will be a live-action/animated-computer film. [222] As of the end of October 2019, the film is now in the script phase, but they are still figuring out what the film should look like and what the story should be. [223] In February 2014, Talking Angela was the subject of an online scam claiming to encourage children to disclose personal information about themselves, allegedly then used by paedophiles to identify the location of these children. The rumor, which has circulated widely on Facebook and various websites claiming to be dedicated to parenting, claims that Angela, the game's main character, asks users to play private personal information using the game's text chat feature. Other versions of the rumor even attribute the child's disappearance to the app.[224] or claim to be run by a pedophile ring, while some go so far as to even claim that the user was caught on camera and can be seen in Eyes. [225] The former rumor originated from an article about Huzlers, which has since proven false, like many articles on a satirical website. [226] Rumors claimed to be true even by YouTubers and even on the app's review page on the Apple App Store and Google Play Store, although there were no verified reports of events occurring. [227] [228] This was exposed by Snopes.com shortly thereafter. The site's owners, Barbara and David Mikkelson, reported that they tried to encourage her to respond by asking for private information, but were unsuccessful, even when asked explicitly sexual questions. [229] While it is true that angela is looking for the user's name, age and personal preferences in the child mode game to determine the topics of conversation, Outfit7 said that this information is all anonymized and all personal information is removed from it. It is also impossible for a person to take control of what Angela says in the game, since the app is based on chat bot software. [230] In 2015, fraud was revived on Facebook, prompting internet security firm Sophos and The Guardian to rein expose it. [231] Sophos employee Paul Ducklin wrote on the company's blog that the message posted on Facebook promoting the scam was close to 600 raucous, repetitive words, despite the claim at the outset that she had no words to describe the situation. It is poorly written and borders on illiterate and incomprehensible. [232] Bruce Wilcox, one of the game's developers, attributed the popularity of the scam to the fact that the chatbot program in Talking Angela is so realistic. [233] However, genuine concern arose that children's game mode might be too easy for children to try, which, if they did, would allow them to buy coins, which can be used as in-game currency, via iTunes. [234] Disabling Child Mode also provides a chat feature, which, while not linking your children to pedophiles, continues to raise concerns, according to Stuart Dredge, a reporter for The Guardian. Dredge wrote that in chat mode Angela asks for information like the user's name. [231] Impact Fear has significantly increased the popularity of the game, and is credited with helping the app make it into the top 10 free iPhone apps shortly after the scam became widely known in February 2015[235] and 3. [233] Age-inappropriate advertising In 2015, the My Talking Tom app was reported for advertising ads of inappropriate adult age services. The UK Advertising Standards Authority ruled that advertising for an was delivered to underage children through the app. [236] [237] The ASA noted that Outfit7 had a strict advertising policy, but that the company could not identify which ad network served an ad of inappropriate age on the children's app and how ads displayed in the app. [238] Reception My Talking Tom had more than 11 million downloads and was the best gaming app in 135 countries worldwide within 10 days of launch. [239] [240] Youtube channel Talking Tom and Friends has more than 10 million subscribers and 3.5 billion views as of March 2020 as of April 2020, the franchise has downloaded its apps more than 12 billion times. [242] The My Talking Tom app won best iPad game: Children, Education and Family at the 2014 Tabby Awards, the global competition for best tablet app. [243] My Talking Tom was also named the favorite to select the 2014 Tabby Prize users in two categories, Best iPad Game: Kids, Education and Family and Best Android Game: Puzzle, Cards and Family.
